Notice to Correspondents.

The Beaver is anxious of representing every neighborhood in the county. We furnish stationery free. Correspondents should bear in mind to write on one side of the paper only; indulge in no personalities and always sign your own name as well as the name de-plane.

A French professor and scientist has been studying the size of men in days before the flood and has made the remarkable discovery that Adam, the first man, was 123 feet high and Eve was 118. Abraham was 25 feet tall and Moses was 13. No wonder that when Adam fell he could not get up—
THE NEW TAX LAW.

The new tax law makes taxes payable one-half in December and one-half in June, and extends the time for paying taxes this year to August 1st, but leave it with the Co. Commissioners to say whether it shall apply to this county or not.

The general sentiment appears to that our county does not want to extend the time, as people have generally paid or made their arrangements to pay by April 1st.

The columns of the local paper should be a true barometer of the spring trade of the merchants of a city. When the reader picks up his home paper he expects to learn through its columns what the spring styles are going to be, where they are to be found, and the place they can be obtained for the least money, etc. A merchant alive to his own interests and that of the public will always be found in the van, advertising his wares in proportion to the stock carried. It is getting about time for our merchants to begin talking to the people through the columns of the papers.—Ex.

A recent issue of the Callaway (Neb.) Tribune was printed on wall paper and contained the following in explanation: "Aid is being sent here for the farmers, but we can't issue aid flour or a piece of side meat, and having run all our white paper through we are using up the wall paper given us, which is about exhausted and only the offces towel is left, which has not been washed for seven years. So we ask our brother printers to consider our situation, with a family to support, with nothing coming in, and we know their ever generous disposition will see some way to contribute a little paper or a couple hour's work to keep my paper going for the good it will do the outside world in telling them how this afflicted, drouth stricken district is getting along; also to enable us to get shoes and proper wraps for our wife and four children. All communications will be cheerfully answered, and any donation will be acknowledged in the press, whether for us or to be divided with other printers in this district."

Controversy is a losing business. The quarrelsome editor is a failure. Working, not fighting, is what pays in journalism. The old idea that the editor must keep up perpetual fire upon his rival has long ago been exploded. The way to outstrip your contemporary is not by abusing him but getting business. To do this, good humor and a liberal spirit are necessary. It will be noticed that there is not one-tenth the bitterness in newspapers there once was; but there is vastly more merit. An editor whose mind is full of jealousy and unkindly feeling has no place in it for enterprise and new ideas. The people detect newspaper wrangling. They know that business jealousy is at the bottom of it and they care nothing for it. It is only the ignorant or vicious who longer indulge in it. As a matter of business it has been long ago discovered that it does not pay.—Ex.

A Danger in Irrigation.

From the Denver Field and Farm

So much depends upon the proper application of water that its practice often results in failure, unless it has received careful consideration and study. The amount of water a crop should receive, the time in its development to irrigate to obtain best results, the method of applying water to different crops, together with that skill in accurate and economical manipulation which comes through practice and experience, are some of the important considerations. The extravagant and wasteful use of it should be most carefully guarded against by every irrigator. Over-irrigation is one of the first and most serious mistakes made by the early settlers.

This is not a strange circumstance, coming as he does from regions where irrigation is not practiced, the available literature upon the subject being so limited, he has been obliged to glean the greater part of his knowledge from the school of experience. The first settlers, comparatively few in number, find an abundant supply of water at hand, and not feeling the necessity of economizing, pour it upon the land as a rule in greatest quantities than needed. The evils of pouring too much water on the land are many. It is difficult to determine which of these detrimental effects is of greater importance. In the first place quantities of water are used which might go to reclaim and make productive other arid land.

In the second place large amounts of water may produce chemical and physical changes in the soil, causing it to become less productive. By changing the land to an alkali plain or swampy condition it is often left a public nuisance and worse than useless. Too much water, of light soils may take out all the soluble chemicals. Heavy soils are more apt to become sour and cold if kept too wet. If the land is level and without drainage, as will be the case if the subsoil is clay or other impervious stratum, greater care will be necessary in irrigating. In alkali soils the injurious salts often increase on irrigated land to such an extent as to seriously injure or totally destroy the vegetation.

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS.

Elmwood Pickups.

We had a little snow storm the 19th, but it has cleared up and is nice again. You bet spring will come again.

The grippe is using some of our people pretty rough. Mrs. Henry Kile and John Kile have been very sick the past week but are better at this writing.

W. H. Walker has traded his claim to Mr. Marshall. The former expects to take his departure for his home in Iowa this week. Good Bye.

You Know.

Willow Spring Warbles.

The Willow Spring items are limited this week on account of the farmers being busy putting in their crops. The farmers of this community are a very industrious class of people, believing if you do not plant you can not reap.

The last supper at the Willow Spring school house the 8th, was a grand success. One young man drew his mother's box hat exchanged with an old gentleman for a good looking young lady.

Our neighborhood was visited on the 10th by a prairie fire but was put out before doing much damage.

Miss Hattie Hubbard has returned to her home in Okla.

J. B. Nickolls purchased a new Burdell saddle and going to play country fiddle soon.

W. H. Walker has traded his claim to Mr. Marshall who will take possession this week.

R. W. Hubbard and son are contemplating putting in a large crop of broom corn this spring.

The oddest thing that has happened to Sol Blesser since he came to this country, so he says, was the loss of a leg that he had traded a horse for.

The funeral of H. D. Miller's baby was well attended last Sunday.

Thos. Weston has gone over to Wolf Creek to work.

Mrs. A. A. Haskell is doing a fine job of plowing.

Sol Blesser has been riding over the country for several days and says he is hunting a cow but every one thinks it a pig.
